WASHINGTON, 1952

FOREWORD

The purpose of this Checklist is to make known to the learned world, with the least delay and with no encumbrance of scholarly apparatus, the contents of the 1,700 rolls of microfilm and the 1,284 photographs (4 x 5 inches) made for the Library of Congress at St. Catherine's Monastery on Mount Sinai from January to June 1950. The auspices under which the work was done, as well as the procedures of selection, are described by Dr. Kenneth W. Clark, the general editor of the Mount Sinai Expedition, in the introduction which follows.

The negative microfilms and the photographs of the manuscripts described in this Checklist have been assembled as the result of considerable expenditures of funds and effort. These expenditures were made possible only by the cooperative arrangements described by Dr. Clark. Copies of the materials are now available to any purchaser at the mere cost of positive prints, which may be ordered from the Photoduplication Service, Library of Congress, Washington 25, D. C.

The Library of Congress is proud to have been able to participate in the work of making available to the world of scholarship these ancient manuscripts, which until now have been so difficult of access. It is grateful for the cooperation which made the achievement possible. There remains to be said, that without the unremitting perseverance of Dr. and Mrs. Clark, who have devoted to the preparation of this Checklist a vast amount of time since their return from Mount Sinai, with frequent visits to Washington and at the cost of much personal inconvenience, it could not have been made available so soon.

INTRODUCTION

During the academic year 1949–50 an unusual task was accomplished as the result of a series of cooperative enterprises which enlisted the efforts and support of the Library of Congress and the American Schools of Oriental Research, the American Foundation for the Study of Man, the Archibishopric of Mount Sinai, the Greek Orthodox Patriarchates in Cairo and Jerusalem, the Armenian Patriarchate in Jerusalem, the Farouk I University, as well as of a number of private scholars.

This task was the microfilming of thousands of old manuscripts in three libraries of the Near East which have always been difficult of access. The largest, and most isolated, of these collections is in St. Catherine's Monastery, where the entire library of 3,300 manuscripts, in 11 languages, was explored and 1,687 of these were completely copied on 35 mm. microfilm. In addition, 1,284 illuminations were reproduced on larger film (4 x 5 inches). Also, a complete microfilm record was made of a rare collection of 1,742 firmans.

Since the expedition finished its work in the Near East in September 1950, the massive task of editing the film and preparing it for scholarly use has been assiduously prosecuted. This Checklist is the initial result, containing detailed information about the research materials now available on film, which heretofore have lain for centuries virtually inaccessible to all. This is not a library catalog, but is rather an index to the film collection in the Library of Congress which includes much the more valuable half of the Sinai manuscripts.

Over 1,000 other manuscripts, in 11 languages, were microfilmed during the year 1949–50 in the Greek and Armenian Patriarchates in Jerusalem, and 1,187 miniatures were reproduced on 4 x 5 film. These will be reported in a separate checklist of Jerusalem manuscripts, to be issued later in 1952.

The expedition to Mount Sinai commenced the actual work of microfilming under the auspices of the American Foundation for the Study of Man. The story of negotiations, organization, equipment, transportation, and operations at St. Catherine's cannot be told here. However, we would express to His Beatitude, Archbishop Porphyrios III, the gratitude of our Expedition and of all scholars who shall make use of these microfilm resources. It is also appropriate here to name those who contributed to the results of the expedition, and as general editor to take this occasion publicly to express gratitude for and commendation of their labors under such trying conditions.

Two-thirds of the Sinai library is composed of Greek manuscripts (2,291) and for this group the general editor was made responsible, having gone to Sinai from Jerusalem on December 27 for the 5-month assignment by the American Schools of Oriental Research. In the first 4 weeks (Jan. 23–Feb. 19) 353 Greek manuscripts were examined with the assistance of Dr. Howard Kee, Two Brothers Fellow from Yale University, who spent his fellowship year at the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem. Also assisting us from the beginning was Mrs. Adelaide Dickinson Clark, my wife, who continued with the expedition in Sinai until March 30. By this time 748 Greek manuscripts had been selected and edited for microfilming. Following the Easter season, the editor worked alone on the Greek collection until the task was concluded on May 23, finally completing 1,087 selected manuscripts.¹ All three of this editorial group were on leave from the American Schools of Oriental Research and this institution contributed their services to the project.

The second largest Sinai collection is the Arabic and the editor for these manuscripts was Dr. Aziz Suryal Atiya, Professor of Medieval History in Farouk I University in Alexandria, who spent several periods at St. Catherine's between February 4 and June 13. He was assisted for various periods (especially between his visits) by Ahmed Issa, an assistant librarian at Fouad University; by Yassa Abdel Massih, Librarian of the Coptic Museum in Cairo, and two other Egyptian associates, all of whom used Arabic as their native language. The Arabic collection is numbered up to 696, but 36 items are missing, 59 are actually printed books, and one is Persian. So the Arabic manuscripts are 600 in number. Of these 305 were selected for microfilming, as well as the Persian volume (Arabic 389).

Professor Gerard Garitte of the University of Louvain joined the expedition for over 2 months

¹ This includes the Greek text of six bilingual manuscripts in the Arabic collection (Nos. 116, 124, 149, 170, 172, 258).

(February 26–March 31, April 11–May 11) as editor of the Syriac, Georgian, and Slavonic collections. Between February 27 and March 31, he examined the entire Georgian collection, which is numbered up to 97. Eight items, however, are missing (Nos. 23, 24, 27, 28, 45, 48, 55, 84) and MS 87 is Armenian. During this first month, Dr. Garitte also completed the Slavonic collection of 41 manuscripts, of which MS 5 is really Latin. All of the Georgian and Slavonic collections were microfilmed, including the single Armenian and Latin items. It will be noted that most of the Slavonic manuscripts in this checklist are left undated, because the staff did not include a competent palaeographer. Between April 18 and May 6, the 257 Syriac manuscripts were examined and 159 selected for microfilming. The famous palimpsest (MS 30) was completely microfilmed but no special photographic technique was applied to it.

The Ethiopic collection numbers only six manuscripts. The first five of these were examined by Prof. Murad Kamil of Fouad University, during April 12–21. The sixth was found later and was prepared for microfilming by the general editor, as was also an additional Armenian fragment (MS 34). All seven manuscripts were copied on microfilm.

Father Joachim, the Abbot, was repeatedly queried about other Armenian and Coptic manuscripts but always replied that the monastery possessed no collections in these languages. The Rendel Harris fragments published in transcription long ago were not again photographed.² There are numerous palimpsests at St. Catherine's but time did not permit special treatment of these. In some cases, the underlying text may be at least identified from the film though a complete study would require examination of the original manuscript. Those palimpsests that have received special attention in the past are Syriac 30, and Arabic 514 and 588. But there are many more still to be studied and they are most numerous in the extensive Greek collection.³

² J. Rendel Harris, Biblical Fragments from Mt. Sinai (London and Cambridge, 1890).

³ On Syriac 30, the work of Lewis, Burkitt, Harris, and Bensley is well known. Arabic 514 was first discovered as a palimpsest by Mrs. Gibson in 1902 (cf. X The Expository Times for 1901–2, pp. 509–510, and also Studia Sinaitica, No. XII, pp. xvii–xviii). She dates the Arabic hand in the late ninth or early tenth century, and the Syriac underwriting of Peshitta text in the sixth century. Her analysis appears to be a satisfactory explanation when it is added further that part of the parchment material for this book came from a seventh-century Greek codex rather than the Syriac codex. Professor Atiya has an entirely different explanation of Arabic 514, believing it to be a quintuple palimpsest ranging from a fifth-century Syriac hand to

The firman collection was the special interest of Professor Atiya, and he is to be credited with gathering the 1,742 items (1,071 Arabic and 671 Turkish). In editing the Arabic group he was assisted by Ahmed Issa and by Abbadi Bey, Dean at Farouk I University. The Turkish group was edited (May 2–11) by Ibrahim Sabri, professor at Farouk I University, and Mahmud Nefri, the Royal Palace librarian. The entire firman collection was microfilmed.

Another special feature of the expedition is found in the miniatures, which were selected and prepared by the general editor. Taken from 113 manuscripts, 1,284 illuminations were photographed on 4 x 5 film, by Wallace Wade of the Library of Congress Photoduplication Service. Because of limited film and time, additional miniatures were omitted. But all illuminated manuscripts were recorded completely on microfilm and thus satisfactory enlargements can be made for all miniatures, beyond those in the Checklist. It was considered an important requirement to have each illuminated manuscript microfilmed so that its iconography might be studied from the text as well as the miniatures, headpieces, and initials.

In charge of all photography was Wallace Wade who brought all his equipment with him from the Library of Congress. Five Egyptian assistants, recruited from Cairo, worked with him for various periods. There were Ahmed Issa, Seoudy, Rashid Harby, Yeni Sobhy, and Tewfik. Mr. Wade worked at St. Catherine's from January through July, spending the remainder of 12 months at work in Jerusalem. Our able field director, William Terry—aided by his wife, Gladys Terry—assumed the burden of organization. Transportation, machinery and fuel, food, and other personal needs were among their many responsibilities well discharged.

Throughout the 7 months of work Father Joachim gave patient supervision and help. Father Evstratios, a younger monk, performed a great service in handling the manuscripts as we required them. It was necessary to select and move scores of manuscripts to and from our workroom in four daily transfers. Others of this monastic family helped on various occasions—Fathers Theocletos, Nicandros, and Evtymios.

the final Arabic hand of the eighth or ninth century. His first analysis began with a third-century, Greek text (cf. London Times, July 31, 1950; Washington Post, Jan. 21, 1951). Arabic 588 was first described as a palimpsest by Mrs. Gibson in her catalogue of 1894 (Studia Sinaitica, No. III).

The last mentioned, as official host, contributed much to our comfort and requirements.

We experienced pleasure and advantage in the circumstance that the manuscripts of St. Catherine's Monastery have only recently been transferred to a fine new semifireproof library, clean and light. We found the books in good order and well cared for. Because of this, and the further advantage of spacious quarters generously provided for our extensive operations, it was possible for our large expedition to work efficiently.

Certain catalogs were available. For the Greek manuscripts we had Gardthausen, Beneshevitch, and Hatch. For other language groups we had Gibson (Arabic), Lewis (Syriac), and Marr (about 40 Georgian MSS). We had no reference works for patristics or liturgics, and lacked many another volume usually found in more active centers. The haste with which the expedition developed and the speed at which its work was done determined for us that we must take the field with the minimum of preparation and bibliographical aids. At the monastery there is no local catalog except for Greek manuscripts and this runs only to MS 1310. This local catalog was microfilmed. The unpublished catalog of the Greek collection, prepared in 1924 by Father Andronikos, was not made available to us.

Selecting and Processing

The objective of the expedition was to microfilm about half of the library and this established the necessity of selection. A basic chronological limit was set at 1600 A. D. for all types of religious manuscripts except liturgical and canonical texts. For the abundant liturgical manuscripts the limit was set at 1400 A. D. For the important Biblical manuscripts no limiting date was imposed, and all were copied. For palaeography, all manuscripts dated before 1600 were included (not excepting liturgical codices) and this has enriched our resources with about 800 dated hands. Hundreds of scribes are named in these manuscripts, many of whom are new acquaintances—especially from among the Sinaite monks. There is therefore a wealth of material to be added to the list in Vogel-Gardthausen.⁴ Also, there are hundreds of colophons, scribal and otherwise, which combine to form much valuable information for the bibliographer and the medieval historian. For Byzantine music, we endeavored to secure representative groups of different types. A surprising number of semi-secular works were found in classics, philosophy, musical theory, mathematics, astronomy, history, geography, grammar, lexicography, medicine, and law. All such manuscripts were copied, regardless of date. All the criteria considered, however, were set aside when special requests were received from any scholar or institution. Our aim was to provide the texts required for researches in progress even though these texts were often later than 1600 A. D. The numerous lists of requests submitted to us were given high priority.

To provide a correct series of folio numbers for microfilm reference was an important task which received much time and care, although we are aware that the pressure of the work did not permit perfection. But as fully as possible we corrected erroneous foliation, in order to lay a foundation for accurate reference—especially for iconographers. A number of manuscripts were found disordered and much time was spent in the effort to correct the order of the text before being committed to the camera. If a manuscript was securely bound, in disorder, instructions were given to the photographer to follow the original and correct sequence of the text (this phenomenon is apparent on the microfilm). Some manuscripts had been broken and the parts listed and shelved separately; these we identified and re-united. Sets of books had been scattered but recognition of their relationships has now been noted. When manuscripts were discovered to be by the same scribe, this identity has been recorded.

Many new manuscripts were found. Above the 2,150 Greek manuscripts listed by Beneshevitch, the present collection numbers 139 additional items, mostly katasticha. Eleven new manuscripts were microfilmed, including some of biblical texts from the special treasury. A number of the manuscripts formerly in the library were listed as "lost" but many of these were rediscovered and identified in the process of our labors. A number of codices were improperly titled and examination of the contents yielded correction.

Although the manuscripts are properly stored today, many show signs of earlier neglect such as former travelers to Sinai often reported. They are damaged by water and mold and insects and worms, and some were stuck together. Many codices required the greatest care in separating, restoring and preparing for photography, and a few were patiently treated and improved before an adequate copy could be secured. The climate of Sinai has dried the parchment so that it crackles loudly when handled. Many were the technical difficulties for the photographer: tight bindings, dark and wavy parchment, faded or light ink, red or gold or silver writing, minute and crowded text, the underwriting of palimpsests. We utilized no special devices and sought no photographic miracles. Yet the technical development of camera and film often produced a copy clearer than the original. Whenever the film processed in Washington appeared below standard, a remake was ordered and this prevented many a loss. In the later stages, however, communication between Sinai and Washington was not equal to the need and therefore some films will be found imperfect.

This Checklist has been prepared by the general editor and two associates. The procedures of collaboration by a large and changing group while at the monastery account for some unevenness in the data. Fortunately, this Checklist has been able to benefit from a handlist which Professor Atiya has prepared for the Arabic manuscripts and firmans, the materials which were under his charge at the monastery. But since none of the other original collaborators was available after the expedition disbanded, it devolved upon the general editor and Mrs. Clark to assume responsibility for the other collections as well as the Greek. Indeed, the great burden of a massive task has fallen chiefly upon her, and only by unflagging industry has it been possible to complete the Checklist without considerable delay. It was first of all necessary to "read" the developed film—about 20 miles of it. It was then a laborious task to bring each manuscript to the final stage, complete on a separate roll and in readiness for scholarly use. The collection of miniatures required identification of subjects, and the more unusual of them often led to extended searching. However, our immediate purpose is not to do the research upon these materials but rather to report them as available to all.

It is planned to prepare a more informative guide to these microfilm materials. At the monastery, an editorial examination of each manuscript resulted in valuable notes. Not all such information is available from the film, and only by combining the editor's notes with the film is a full account of a manuscript possible. In the meantime, we invite inquiries that are not satisfied by this checklist. We shall be grateful for corrections and supplementary data. Above all, we shall appreciate hearing about researches upon these Sinai manuscripts.

From first to last, the Sinai Expedition of 1950 was supported by the Library of Congress. Dr. Luther H. Evans and Mr. Verner W. Clapp gave indispensable and wise guidance to the plan and provided most of the necessary funds. Clearly they were motivated by insight and imagination for so unusual an undertaking. We are especially grateful to Mr. Donald C. Holmes, Chief of the Photoduplication Service, who with his staff has filled the technical requirements with remarkable efficiency. His administration has provided excellent coordination between the expedition editor and the Library of Congress—both through the year of our foreign labors and throughout the long and detailed process of preparing the film for usefulness.

It is through the varied labors of many that the finished film now stands on Library of Congress shelves, like so many manuscripts transported from Mount Sinai.
